THE TIMES LEVEL OF LARA CROFT IS HERE!

The exclusive Times level has been specially written for Times readers, and is set in and around the newspaper. It starts with our editor, Peter Stothard, asking Lara to see him - to tell her of a hush-hush find in Egypt and an unfolding mystery. Lara soon gets to work for us - checking out information in our archives then embarking on the dangerous mission.

To complete the level she must get to grips with plenty of weapons and tools. Then she will have to solve specific puzzles while dodging traps and some chilling enemies - like scarab beetles, bats, mummies and skeletons.

Anyone connected to the Internet will be able to download the special Times level to their PC.

The game is available to download via www.the-times.co.uk/lara/. The following instructions are also contained on the microsite.

Downloading instructions:

 You first need to check if your machine is powerful enough to contain Lara. Core Design, the makers of the Tomb Raider games, including The Times version, recommend a minimum of a Pentium processor running at 233MHz, 16Mb of memory, all running Windows 95/98. An internet connection is also required to download the game.

You will also need to be running DirectX6.1 or better. To find which version of DirectX you have, double-click on the My Computer icon, then click on C:, Program Files, DirectX, Setup, and finally DXDiag.

This program will then show which version of DirectX you have installed. If it is less than DirectX6.1 you need to upgrade by going to http://windowsupdate.microsoft.com in your web browser, and following the instructions on the screen. When ready to download The Times Tomb Raider, point your browser at www.the-times.co.uk/lara/ and click on the link to download the program. It will ask whether you wish to Open the File or Save To to download. The whole game is around 10Mb big and so - depending on the speed of your internet connection - will take around 1-2 hours. Do this in the evening, or at the weekend, and the phone call will cost around £1 with a standard ISP. When the program has finished downloading, it will install itself. You are ready to play.
